KOREAN LISTENING

The Next Section Is Comprised Of Listening Resources, Mainly Podcasts and Videos That You Can Use To Practice Listening. I Have Them Seperated By Level. There Is Not An Extensive List At The Moment But Will Continually Be Added To Overtime

ALL LEVELS

Kingka Podcast

A great choice if you like Korean dramas and movies. I will say this podcast seems less focused on Korean listening and more on culture and explaining kdramas.

Talk To Me In Korean

Talk To Me In Korean has a few different podcasts for all levels, including a series in 100% Korean and 2 about everyday conversational Korean

BEGINNER

TTMIK – Core Kor. Grammar

Another podcast TTMIK has is one on core Korean grammar and beginner concepts. Definitely one to check out!

Korean – Survival Phrases

If you have a trip planned to South Korea soon or want to nail some key Korean phrases this is great. It will definitely increase your understanding.

Essential Korean

This one is very promising. Almost like a combination of the 2 mentioned above. From what I've seen It looks like you can learn how to say a lot of things with this podcast - through grammar and phrases.

BEGINNER

Junior Naver Stories

There are a lot of videos here that are meant for Korean kids, but amazing for beginner as you can learn lots of words and phrases here - I definitely wouldn't skip this as a beginner. At the top there are different categories of videos you can go to. There is even a section where they read books on video.

INTERMEDIATE

Sponge Mind

This is a bilingual podcast that uses mostly Korean and a small amount of English. Episodes come with transcriptions as well. Definitely recommend!

IYAGI Series – TTMIK

Talk to me in Korean is back once again on the list. This series was made specifically for Intermediate learners and lots of interesting topics are talked about. Mostly in the form of conversation between 2 Koreans.

Sparkling Korean

Although these episodes were made quite awhile ago there's great content to practice listening with. The concepts feel more beginner, but Intermediates can use it to improve comprehension in Korean.

INTERMEDIATE

Hangugeo con AngDuck

There's plenty of episodes and many interesting topics introduced. A great way to absorb Korean naturally through daily listening.

Intermediate Korean

The speaking is clear and the episodes are pretty concise. There are Korean transcripts provided for every thing said in the episodes. Very good choice!

ADVANCED

PODBANG

There are actually 3 separate podcasts here that could be good for Advanced learners. 1 is more news like talking about current events - HERE. The 2nd is more about comedy - HERE. The last one has to do with relationship advice and counseling - HERE. All very interesting topics!

KOREAN READING

The Next Section Is Comprised Of Reading Resources. Free Reading Materials Are Notoriously Hard To Find For Korean Language. I Did My Best And Researched As Much As I Could. I Have Them Seperated By Level. There Is Not An Extensive List At The Moment But Will Continually Be Added To Overtime.

ALL LEVELS

LingQ

My personal favorite app/website. The downside is it isn't free, but the link above allows you to test out the app before committing to anything.

Material for all levels, plus you can listen and read at the same time.

You can import videos or shows from places like Netflix and study them.

StoryKorean.com

This site has stories for beginners and Intermediates and it's based around Korean culture related topics. Definitely a good choice!

ALL LEVELS

Vocabspace App

This app has articles on different topics like entertainment/kpop, technology, sports, beauty, etc. You can look up the meaning of words in app by clicking on them.

BEGINNER

쥬니어 네이버 (Junior Naver)

I mentioned this in listening resources too, because you can listen and read Kids stories at the same time. There are different categories as well.

채널예스 한글동화 Channel Yes

Kids Stories

I mentioned this in listening resources too, because you can listen and read Kids stories at the same time. There are different categories as well.

INTERMEDIATE

Naver Blogs

You can search for blogs on any topic you'd like to read about. I even sometimes search for Korean lessons here so I can read lessons in Korean.

Korea Times – Bilingual News Reports

Kids Dong – Short News Reports

A of recent news articles, although visually it's quite plain looking. Great for finding lots of vocabulary words.

INTERM. + ADV.

Newspaper : 조선일보

This is pretty self-explanatory. There are a ton of different news articles here about recent events in Korea and around the world,

News : 동아일보

More News Articles. A great way to learn more Korean vocabulary word's relevant to real world situation.

ADVANCED

Series By Naver

Here they have web novels, webtoons, and ebooks all in Korean. You can definitely find something interesting.

TOPIK 2 Mock Reading Tests

This isn't like the other options, but even if you're not planning to take the Topik exam you can use the mock exams as reading practice.

Bilingual News Reports

It has Interesting news articles - each has the English and then the Korean translation underneath.

KOREAN WRITING

The Next Section Is Comprised Of Writing Resources. Writing resources are kind of hard for me to define, but I count any thing that allows you to practice using Korean (without directly speaking) as a writing resource. I don't have many resources here yet, but I'll try to add more overtime.

ALL LEVELS

Journal Prompts from me

I created this list of different things that you can write about in Korean. You can access it on my website for free through the 'Digital Community Library' but for now clicking this link will take you straight to the PDF.

Check Your Sentences

Almost nothing can beat making your own sentences. It's best to make sentences using sentence endings, grammar, or vocabulary you are currently learning. Making a daily journal is also a great idea. I'm linking some resources you can use to check your own sentences.

HANGUL

Write It! Korean App

This app is great for working on stroke order and the overall composition of Hangul characters. It's an app available on IOS and Android.

Learn Hangul Wiki

This simple guide from the Korean Wiki Project is great for beginners who need a crash course on writing in Korean, as well as for the intermediate or advanced learner who wants to brush up on the basics

KOREAN SPEAKING

The Next Section Is Comprised Of Resources That You Can Use To Practice Your Speaking. When It Comes To Improving Your Speaking Skills, You Just Need To Actually Speak in Korean. That Being Said, There's No Textbook You Could Use That Would Directly Help You Practice Speaking. But I Have Compiled As Much As I Can Think Of That Would Help You .

Language Exchange Apps

TANDEM

Find native speakers to exchange messages with. There are also voice rooms to participate in.

HiLokal

There are teachers on there whose classes you can attend for free. There's voice rooms you can use to speak to others in Korean (or other language)

HelloTalk

You can post sentences and get corrections. There are voice rooms to chat in and make friends. You can message native speakers. You can use it for more than Korean.

Pre-Made Dialogues & Conversations

My Dialogue Practice IG Posts

I have made a lot of posts where I have the audio of the dialogue as well as a breakdown of the vocabulary and grammar used inside of it.

Naver Dictionary & Translate

All the dialogues in my posts I get from Naver dictionary (you can visit the website or download the app. personally I use the app literally everyday).

Conversational Topics and Prompts

Basic Conversation Topics

When you are in those voice rooms or messaging with native speakers you may run out of things or ideas of things to talk about. I'll leave a link of some conversational topics you could use.

Not So Basic Topics

These may be a little bit more difficult to talk about in Korean, but can definitely be used to practice making conversation on a more complex level.

My Speaking Prompts

Speaking To Yourself

A great way to practice speaking is to talk to yourself in Korean. As you do this, it would be best to record your voice so that you can either use it to track your progress or listen back to look for any mistakes. You'll figure out which words and phrases you don't know yet, in that case make a list of those things and look it up after you are done. For now, try to still get your point across even if you can't recall or don't know how to say something.

I'll leave a list of speaking prompts that I made (similar to the writing prompts).

SPEAKING PROMPTS

EXPLAIN HOW TO DO SOMETHING SIMPLE (MAKE A SANDWICH, PLAY A GAME, CREATE SOMETHING, ETC.)

END OF THE MAP

I've slowly been updating this map over the last year or so. I would say that it is currently "finished" in theory as it has everything you really need, but I also feel like something like this could never be "finished". I'm planning to just keep adding on to this more and more and more. Hopefully, it will eventually be filled with endless resources.

It was updating every couple of months, but I will probably slow it down more. The next update is likely to be aesthetic in order to make it look a little bit softer. For now it is accessible on the "Digital Community Library" under "from Koreanstudyjunkie" on KoreanStudyJunkie.com
